

PATIENT INSTRUCTIONS

Sun Protection

- The Ultraviolet Radiation in sunlight is very harmful to skin, especially children (sunburns and deep tans in children greatly increases the chances of cancer later in life).
- Sun exposure causes premature aging of skin, cancers, and many other skin lesions.
- Harmful radiation from the sun is not limited to hot summer days but occurs all year long, goes through glass windows, and occurs even when there is cloud cover.
- Most people fail to protect themselves adequately or apply sunscreen correctly.

Ultraviolet Radiation (UVR)

- There are 3 forms of UVR – UVA, UVB, and UVC
- UVA is long wavelength, penetrates through glass, penetrates deep into your skin
- UVC is the shortest wavelength and is the most toxic but is mostly blocked by the ozone
- It is important that you protect yourself and your children from both UVA and UVB

Sunscreens and Sun Blocks

- Apply broad spectrum sunscreen liberally, (UVA and UVB blocking – “Broad Spectrum”) of at least SPF 30.
- Apply after any topical medication and before any cosmetics/makeup.
- A wide brim hat that casts a shadow on your face is a valuable addition to sunscreen.
- Most people do not apply enough:
 - Apply a nickel-sized amount to your face alone
 - Apply 2 tablespoons (enough to fill a shot glass) to exposed areas (don't forget your ears, back of your neck, and back of your legs)
 - If using a spray, apply until an even sheen appears on the skin and make sure to rub it into the skin
 - Re-Apply after swimming, heavy perspiration, toweling off, or every 2 hours
